In this talk, I will offer a contrastive analysis of verbs and case particles in Japanese and Indian languages highlighting similarities and differences between them and propose the application of the contrastive analysis to Japanese language teaching and learning. Further, I will introduce the ongoing project at NINJAL aiming to developing databases for teaching/learning Japanese verbs and particles.
※Talk will be given mainly in English and Japanese.